Direction: You are floating around in the matrix or intermembrane space of the mitochondria. You will be pumped across the membrane through one of the cytochrome complexes and eventually diffuse back to the matrix through ATP synthase. Remember it pumping you into the intermembrane space is endergonic but diffusion through ATP synthase is exergonic!